Douglas B. Robelen, Chief Deputy Clerk of the Supreme Court of Virginia, has been confirmed to the Executive Committee of the National Conference of Appellate Court Clerks (NCACC).

Mr. Robelen has served as Chief Deputy Clerk of the Supreme Court of Virginia since 2003. Prior to coming to the Supreme Court, Doug worked as an associate with the law firm of Mays and Valentine, as an appeals examiner with the Virginia Employment Commission, as a staff attorney with the Court of Appeals of Virginia, and as an informal appeals agent with the Virginia Department of Medical Assistance Services. He graduated from Davidson College in 1987 and from the University of Virginia School of Law in 1990.

The National Conference of Appellate Court Clerks was established in 1973 with the objectives of improving the skills and knowledge of its members, promoting effective court administration, providing a forum for the exchange of ideas, and maintaining facilities for the dissemination of information concerning appellate court operations. Its membership is comprised of state, federal, and military appellate and Supreme Court clerks from the United States, District of Columbia, territories and possessions of the United States, and tribal appellate courts.
