Larry Royster Confirmed to Office of Vice President of the National Conference of Appellate Court Clerks

Larry Royster, Chief of Staff and Clerk of the Michigan Supreme Court, was confirmed by the Executive Committee to the office of Vice President of the National Conference of Appellate Court Clerks (NCACC).

The Michigan Supreme Court appointed Royster as Clerk and Chief of Staff in 2013. Before joining the Michigan Supreme Court, Royster worked for the Michigan Court of Appeals for 27 years, initially as a staff attorney and ultimately as the research director and chief clerk. As a member of the NCACC, he has served on the Executive Committee (2013–2015) and on the Educational Fund, Technology, Contracts, and Program Committees. Royster earned his bachelor's degree from Michigan State University and his law degree from Thomas M. Cooley Law School.

The NCACC was established in 1973 with the objectives of improving the skills and knowledge of its members, promoting effective court administration, providing a forum for the exchange of ideas, and maintaining facilities for the dissemination of information concerning appellate court operations. Its membership is composed of state, federal, and military appellate and supreme court clerks from the United States, District of Columbia, territories and possessions of the United States, and tribal appellate courts.
